

Pony's Pink Paddock

One day, Pony saw her Little Girl come early with breakfast.

“I am going to the store with Daddy,” she said.

Pony ate the warm mash and swished her tail. Pony crunched her carrot pieces as Little Girl ran to get in Daddy's truck.

In two hours, Little Girl and Daddy returned and unloaded many long white poles and posts.

“We will build you a big paddock!” said Little Girl.

Pony looked at the white poles and posts. She swished her tail again.

Daddy and Little Girl dug holes for the posts. They made a big circle of holes.

Little Girl's Mamma was making red sheets for her art project. She used dye to make the sheets red. While the sheets dried, Mamma spread them out in the sun on the clean, white poles.

Why did Pony get a pink paddock?
